Our in-house coitus interpretus on finding new partners, talking dirty, seduction in the workplace and other sexual quandaries

BY HELEN McNUTT

I'm really keen to meet up with a couple we met on a swinging website (she's gorgeous) but my girlfriend isn't so sure. What if I really want to fuck this other girl but her man leaves my girlfriend cold?

Rhodri, Cardiff

According to my swinging friend Lila, the rule is you're either both in or you're both out. So it's kind of tough if you fancy this website woman and your girlfriend wants nothing to do with her boyfriend. Also bear in mind that when advertising themselves for sex, people frequently post old, touched-up or entirely false pictures, so this internet stunner might actually turn out to be pretty ropey. But it's still worth meeting them, if only in the spirit of adventure. Lila says that in order to meet your perfect couple you've got to kiss a lot of frogs, so you might as well get started now.

It sounds like you're open-minded so why not take yourself out of the picture and see if anything develops between the girls? Your girlfriend might be keen to get to know the woman without the threat of having to sleep with her mingling boyfriend, which is something that could pay dividends in the long run. If that doesn't appeal then forget this couple and try a swinging party where you get to see what/who you're letting yourself in for. Fever runs swinging parties for "young and attractive couples" ie it vets potential swingers first (www.feverparties.com).

Help! My girlfriend loves it when I talk dirty but I'm running out of things to say. Honestly!

Jack, London

Oh dear. Are you reading the right magazine? You need to invest in the some late 20th-century erotica – the complete works of Jilly Cooper. Trawl these and become familiar with a few Cooperisms such as "sticky, spongy burrow" and "strafe her nipples" and you'll have enough squeamish sentences to keep your girlfriend squirming for ages. ►
