

Ibiza catches Fever

Purveyor of upmarket swingers' parties move to clubbing mecca

Loyal readers will recall that last year (left) Arena became the first mag to breach the exclusive 'inner sanctum' of Fever, Europe's most exclusive swingers' parties operator (basically, if you're a pig, peasant or Stan Collymore, you're not getting in). Next month, its 'citadel of sex' temporarily moves to Ibiza for the first time in what can only be seen as a natural continuation of its ethos. The tour runs from May 6-9, with a secret (but suitably high-end) hotel block booked for the duration and a Balinese villa booked for the party. There are also state-of-the-art villas available for hire. Prices start at £280 for two nights – go to feverparties.com to subject yourself to its vigorous screening procedure.
